The young man who is "going the gait" doesn't halt long enough to reflect that he is heading himself off from becoming a bank director.

A writer in a fashion magazine asks "What should we take on a long railroad trip?" In the first place we should make up our minds to take chances.

Charlotte has gone and got John L. Sullivan as one of the attractions for the Mecklenburg county fair. People who show any disposition to knock the fair can go up against John L. if they can't get satisfaction.

The Republicans will now go around explaining that the big Republican slump in Maine indicates no trecking of the people towards Democracy but is just a sign that they want to get off the water-wagon.

The circus is coming and we do not hesitate to say that in addition to a desire to see the zoological specimens once more we could stand for the caliope if it will give us a revival of "The Little Widow Dunn."

Col. Roger Sullivan, of Illinois, plucked up courage to make a reply to Bryan's attack upon him as to how he got to be National Democratic Committeeman. It should be kept in mind that a reply is different from an answer.

Hon. William Randolph Hearst calls his new party the Independence League. Judging from the rabid speeches in the league's convention in New York on Tuesday, its proper name should be the Amalgamated Aggregation of Knockers, Kickers and Growlers.

The Republicans go on insisting that government ownership of railroads is an issue in the campaign in face of the fact that Col. Bryan alluded to it only as an "eventuality" in his own individual opinion. An "eventuality" in one man's opinion is different from a plank or an issue laid down in a party platform.

The discussion of the Senatorial question should be settled by conceding to Brunswick the candidate she has endorsed under the arrangement now existing. Then, when the New Hanover county Democratic convention meets to ratify the primady nominations, let a resolution be passed setting forth the inequalities of the present arrangement and notifying Brunswick Democrats that hereafter New Hanover will insist on naming the candidate for two out of every three Senatorial terms.

A MODERN BUILDING

Handsome New Structure for Messrs. Peterson & Rulfs on North Front Street

NOW NEARING COMPLETION

Will Be Ready for Occupation on or About October 1st—Commodious Store on 1st Floor, Offices and Hall on 2nd and 3rd.

The handsome new store and office building which Messrs. Peterson & Rulfs are having erected at a cost of $15,000, next to the Murchison National Bank building, on North Front street, is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy on or about the first of October. It will be easily one of the very handsomest buildings in the State. The front is of red pressed brick, trimmed with Bedford stone of exceedingly handsome design. Large solid plate glass windows and prism transoms, reflecting the light the entire length of the store, will be the first of its kind in the city and exceptionally pretty. In the windows will be not an inch of metal or wood frame work, the glass being held in place by the Crane patent clamp, giving a free and unobstructed view of the entire interior from the sidewalk. The frontage of the store will be 30 feet and the depth 100 feet, with wide alley-way for receiving and shipping in the rear. The floor will be of a pretty design of hardwood and the counters, shelving and all fixtures will be made to suit the tenant in every way, being fully in keeping with the elegant appointment of the building in other respects. The store will be one of the prettiest, most commodious and convenient of any retail establishment in the city.

On the second floor will be seven large, modern offices, each with two windows, well lighted and well ventilated, being reached by an easy stairway leading directly from the street. The window framing, except the show windows, will be of metal with woven-wire glass, making the building practically fire proof in every respect.

The third floor is reached in the same way and will be fitted to suit tenant. At present it is one large hall, suitable for assembly or lodge purposes of any kind. Throughout the building is wired for electric lights and has water and sewerage connections on every floor.

Messrs. Beitner & Wilkins were the architects and Mr. Joe Schad, the contractor, for the building and they have comstructed it along the most modern lines. It will be indeed a credit to Wilmington and to any tenant or tenants fortunate enough to occupy it.

MARRIED IN FAYETTEVILLE.

Mr W. P. Farrar Claims a Fair Cumberland Bride—Reside Here.

Mr. William Pink Farrar and bride, nee Miss Nellie Johnson, an attractive young woman of Fayetteville, and a daughter of Mr. M. W. Johnson, arrived in the city last evening and are at home at No. 417 North Third street. They were married at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride in Fayetteville, Rev J. J. Hall, of the Baptist church, officiating, and after a brief reception they left on the afternoon train for Wilmington.

Mr. Farrar is a popular young Wilmingtonian and is employed in the Car Accountant's office of the Atlantic Coast Line. He has many friends who will congratulate him upon his happy marriage.

Died at Delgado Yesterday.

Mr. W. G. Jordan, the venerable father of Mr. J. A. Jordan, so well and favorably known in Wilminton, died yesterday at the home of his son, Cottage No. 66, Delgado. Mr. Jordan was 78 years of age, and passed away at 1:50 o'clock after being in feeble health for some time. The funeral will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon and interment will be in Bellevue cemetery.

Refreshments—N Orrell, I M. Bear, H. B. Peschau, H. L. O'Neill and Fred Banck.

It will be noted that the liberty has been taken of appointing several members of the Reserve Corps, who have ever taken an active interest in the welfare of the company. The Daughters of the Confederacy have been invited to assist the various committees and as usual will contribute very largely to the success of the event. Last year's effort was a brilliant success, but this season it is proposed to attain even greater things.

All members of the committees are urgently requested to meet in the assembly room of the company tomorrom night at 8 o'clock.

A. C. L. OF CONNECTICUT.

Tatol Assets Over Forty-three Million June 30th, 1906.

Hartford, Conn., September 10.—The Atlantic Coast Line Compiny (of Connecticut) to-day gave out its condensed balance sheet for the year ended June 30th, showing total assets of $43,666.711, and profit and loss surplus of $17,574,802, an increase of $268,275 from the same item last year. The statement is as follows:

Securities deposited with Safe Deposit and Trust Company, of Baltimore, $11,600,000; railroad and other bonds, stocks, etc., $31,944,510. The balance of the total includes bills receivable, dividends accrued, real estate, cash, etc. There are $13,000,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness outstanding, $1,075,000 open accounts, and other minor items, that, with the surplus, bring the total liabilities up to $43,666,711.

The Opposition Withdrawn.

Chairman McEachern, of the Board of County Commissioners, was notified yesterday that all opposition to the granting of the liquor license to A. W. Branch, trading as the Morris Distillery Co., had been withdrawn the notice having come in a note from B. G. Empie, Esq., counsel for the opposition. The Commissioners will meet, however, as called, and it is presumed that the license will be granted without further ado.

Water Works Company Notified.

City Clerk and Treas. Fowler yesterday addressed two communications to the Clarendon Water Works Company informing them of the action of the Board of Aldermen at its meeting Monday night. Each letter was brief and to the point.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK

Senatorial Imbroglio Continues to Occupy Center of Stage in New Hanover

NAMING OF THE DELEGATES

Interview With Chairman Boney Rather Simplifies Matters—Registration Progressing Slowly and Much Misapprehension.

The Star yesterday had a very interesting interview with Mr. G. J. Boney, chairman of the late Democratic County Convention, with reference to the Senatorial imbroglio, which appears after all to be right much of a "tempest in a teapot."

Mr. Boney is mindful of his obligations to the people and points out that any delegates named by him and his advisory committee will go to the Senatorial Convention uninstructed. If in the meantime there is a primary and the people have expressed at the polls their wishes relative to the Senatorial matter, it is wholly preposterous to think that in the face of the returns they will totally disregard the wishes of the county. Mr. Boney clings to his right to appoint the delegates and so far as the Star can learn there is no objection to his doing so, the presumption being that they will be fair-minded men with no disposition to haggle over technicalities where differences are to be settled in the party Mr. Boney considers that he has a duty to perform as chairman of the convention and when that obligation is discharged, it is up to the delegates to act in the matter as they think best and that, according to views expressed on the street, seems to be the public's idea of justice in the matter. Mr. Boney thinks there is not sufficient time for the delegates to be named between the primary on the 19th and the Senatorial Convention on the 22nd, all of which may be true when the difficulties of naming a representative body is concerned. Mr. Boney says that he has been endeavoring every day to get his advisory committee together in order to complete the list of delegates and the list is expected to be ready in a few days. So far as he is concerned, Mr. Boney says that they will go uninstructed and that there is a law as to delegates going to conventions and carrying out the wishes of the people as expressed at the polls. After all, it seems that there has been much unnecessary alarm and palaver over this matter and there is no doubt but that the wishes of the people at the polls will be respected. If the opposition to Brunswick's nominee at the polls is successful, there is every reason to believe that the tacit understanding between Brunswick and New Hanover will be broken and another man named. On the contrary, if a majority of the voters of New Hanover vote for Brunswick's nominee, it seems safe to say that he will be the nominee of the Senatorial Convention.

Local politics continue to occupy the center of the stage in New Hanover and partisans of the several candidates are as busy as bees. Strange to say there is much apathy among voters upon the question of registration, everybody taking it for granted that their names are on the registration books and that they will be able to cast their ballots on next Wednesday. Inasmuch as many people have confounded the city with the county registration and there is some confusion about the transcript of the books, it would be well for every voter to call by his polling place and see that his name is on the books. The transcript of the books have heretofore given no residence, age and other information, but yesterday it was decided to call the books in and have them changed to include everything on the county books. This will be done at once and the books will be returned to the polling places, but many voters are laboring under the impression that they were registered for the city election and that will be sufficient, whereas the county books two years ago are taken as the basis and they will not be allowed to vote unless they were registered for the general county election.

Police Court Yesterday.

In the police court yesterday Henry Slater, Sarah Slater and Cornelius McDonald, all colored, charged with disorderly conduct, were arraigned upon complaint of Special Officer C. T. Croom. The first named was let off with the costs, the woman was sent to the farm for 30 days and McDonald was found not guilty. He was, however, sent to the roads for 10 days for back costs. James Sanders, in default of $10 fine, and costs for disorderly conduct, was sent to the roads for 30 days.

RATES FOR VETERANS

Railroads Announce Reduced Fare from All Points in North Carolina—Arrangements for Meeting Here Tuesday.

On account of the re-union of Fort Fisher survivors in this city on Tuesday, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Seaboard Air Line and the Southern Railway have announced a round trip rate of one fare, plus 25 cents from all points in North Carolina, tickets on sale Sunday and Monday, with final limit Friday of the same week.

Nealy all arrangements have been made for a successful meeting. As many of the veterans will reach here Monday for the meeting the following day, it has been decided to give them an informal reception at the W. L. I. Armory Monday night, beginning at 8 o'clock. All Confederate veterans are invited to come and meet the visitors on this occasion and the public will be cordially welcome at the meeting the following day.

The meeting will take place Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Court House, which has been kindly placed at the disposition of the visitors for their gathering. After the meeting it is proposed to extend the visitors the courtesy of a trolly trip to Wrightsville Beach and a trip down the river. A welcome address will be delivered by some prominent Wilmingtonian at the meeting Tuesday and the response will be given by one of the visitors.

Over 30 veterans thus far have written that they will be here and many have by word of mouth signified similar intentions to Rev. J. A. Smith, leader of the movement. Many said that they were coming and were going to bring comrades. Letters and telegrams are coming in from all over the country expressing sympathy with the movement and promising attendance at succeeding meetings.

The organization of the survivors of this memorable engagement means much for Wilmington and it is hoped that the citizens generally will lend every encouragement.

COLE BROTHERS' SHOWS.

Many Feature Acts and Performances With the Big Enterprise.

Wherever the Cole Brothers' United Shows have exhibited press and public have been a unit in praising the work of the exceedingly large number of young and handsome women performers. Bevies of the fair sex are represented among the riders aerialists, contortionists, jugglers, high-wire artists, gymnasts, bicyclists, clowns, animal trainers, chariot drivers and in fact even among the ringmasters. As may naturally be expected keen rivalry exists between the lady and gentlemen artists, a fact which greatly enhance their performances. The lengthy imperial programme, presented this year by these shows, contains only the best and most modern features that money and labor can procure and in such quantity and variety as to satiate every arenic taste and fancy. Lack of space prevents an enumeration of all the different acts, many of which must be seen to be appreciated. There is an extended list, the list of which does not by any means end the pleasures which the Cole Brothers shows will provide patrons at Hilton Park Monday afternoon and even of next week.

There are the sports of ancient Rome and moderate fete day races and contests. Then the big triple menageries form a zoological display without a peer in all the world. Next is Cole Brothers marvelous museum in which are exhibited a myriad of human and animal freaks and other attractions. Thus it will be seen that there is a royal holiday feast in store for all who attend this mighty amusement exposition.

Mrs. J. B. Mercer Bereaved.

Mrs. J B Mercer received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of Dr. H. W. Lilly, of Concord, N. C. Mrs Mercer was telegraphed for on Tuesday but did not reach his bedside before he passed away. Dr. Lilly lived in Concord nearly ever since the war and enjoyed a large and lucrative practice, which he had to give up some months ago on account of failing health. He leaves no children, but a sorrowing wife and a half sister, Mrs. Mercer, of this city. His only sister, Mrs. S. S. Lilly, of Norwood, N C., preceded him to the grave about a year ago He was a veteran of the Civil War, having been a surgeon in Pettigrew's command, and attended that great soldier when he received his mortal wound at "Falling Waters," on Lee's memorable retreat from Getysburg in July, 1863.

WRECK AT FLORENCE

Capt. Oscar Hinton, of Wilmington Injured in Crash on the Yards Yesterday

A DESTRUCTIVE COLLISION

Pay Train and String of Cars Came Together With Fearful Impact Car Telescoped By Locomotive—An Engineer Hurt.

Captain Oscar Hinton, of this city, conductor on the Atlantic Coast Line pay train, was severely injured in a collision of his train and a string of cars being shifted on the yards at Florence, S. C., yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock. While the extent of Capt. Hinton's injuries are not yet fully developed, it is known that they will not be fatal, though he will likely be laid up some time in consequence thereof. Mrs. Hinton and Mr. and Mrs. Graham Farmer left yesterday afternoon for Florence to be with Capt. Hinton and as soon as he is able, he will be brought to this city.

The wreck yesterday occurred at the west of the extensive yards at Florence and is supposed to have been caused by the dense fog that hung over the place obstructing the view of the engineers on the two trains. The shifting engine was pulling the string of cars down the yards backwards and the engine of the pay train was coming in from Maysville, also pulling backwards. The shifting engine crew saw the impending crash just in time to escape by jumping. Engineer J. M. Johnson, of the pay train, was slightly injured. The trains came together with a crash that was heard for several blocks. The paymaster's staff were all in the living compartments of the car and escaped unhurt. The two tenders were completely demolished. The front of the engine of the pay train was driven half way through the pay car and how Capt. Hiton, being in that end of the car, escaped instant death is a miracle. After the accident the wounded conductor was made as easy as possible by the track and Dr. Kings and Gregg attended him at once. He was later removed to the hotel and is receiving the best of attention by the A. C. L. authorities and physicians. One of his ribs is broken and he complains of his back. It is barely possible that he has been injured internally.

HONOR OF MAJ. STEDMAN.

Distinguished North Carolinian Honored by His Fellow Citizens.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Greensboro, N. C., September 12.—In the nature of a banquet at the McAdoo Hotel to-night, the Hon. Charles Manley Stedman, of this city, was given a most enthusiastic, cordial and sincere welcome by the representative citizens of the city upon his safe return home from a visit to England and Scotland. There was not the least vestige of political significance about the reception, it being given simply to show the distinguished guest the high and universal esteem in which he is held by the people of his home city.

There were present forty-five of the most prominent and influential citizens of the city and county, besides several from a distance, among whom were Mr. Frank H. Stedman, of Wilmington, brother o fthe guest of the evening. The dining room was tastefully decorated and brightly illuminated and the menu was a very delightful one.

After the menu was served a number of toasts were responded to in a most eloquent and feeling manner. The reception closed with an address by the distinguished guest, in which he thanked the people for the honor done him and saying although he was from his native land, his mind was ever upon North Carolina.

The following telegram was received by the reception committee from Raleigh:

"We join you in tribute of affection and honor to Governor Stedman." "This is a man." (Signed)
HENRY G. CONNOR,
FRED A. WOODARD,
CHAS. B. AYCOCK."

Decorating Orton Lobby.

The decorators from the Charlotte firm which has the contract have arrived and begun work on the lobby of The Orton. Repairs and improvements are going on all over the house and the hotel will soon be one of the prettiest and most admirably appointed in the State. The annex in the Purcell building will be ready for occupancy on or about the first of October.

NO COMFORT FOR REPUBLICANS.

The result of the election in Maine on Tuesday can afford no comfort to the Republican party. All manner of excuses for the slump will not blot out the significance of the small vote cast for the Republican State ticket and Congressman Littlefield. The latest plurality claimed for Governor Cobb is from 8,000 to 9,000, which is the smallest ever given the Republican ticket in the Pine Tree State.

The slump in Maine is all the more cheering to Democrats because they had no outside help during the campaign, whereas the Republicans had the services of such big guns as Speaker Cannon, Secretary Taft, Senator Lodge, Senator Beveridge and other heavy-weight spellbinders. They conjured the Maine voters with the name of Theodore Roosevelt, presenting him to them as the only issue in the campaign and urging a Republican victory as in endorsement of his administration. Whatever can be said of the result of the election it is not can victory as an endorsement of his President, but as a matter of fact it came very nearly amounting to a repudiation. No doubt it was a protest against stand-patism, and under any circumstances the inconsequential plurality was no victory but a stunning blow to the Republican party.

In effect the Maine election was a Democratic victory and in all probability it will affect the close Congressional districts in other States in this Fall's elections.

A contrast of the Republican plurality on Tuesday with their plurality in 1904, will show the overwhelming disaster that has occurred to the G. O. P. In 1904 Governor William T. Cobb (Rep.) received 76,591 votes, Cyrus W. Davis (Dem.) 49,791, Nathan F. Woodbury (Prohibition) 2,756, and William G. Hapgood (Socialist) 1,576. Cobb in 1904 received a plurality of 22,468 over all his competitors, and in this year he gets less than 10,000.

President Roosevelt doesn't seem to have been regarded as much of an issue by the Maine voters, and the election on Tuesday must have caused sad reflections at Oyster Bay.

EXPORTS OF COTTON INCREASING

The South can take some comfort in the statement that exports of cotton manufactures from the United States showed an increase for the last two fiscal years, ending with June—the cotton year runs from September to August—show an increase of from $49,666,080 in 1904-5 to $52,944,033 in 1905-6. More than half of these consist of cotton cloth sent to China, the increase in this item being from $28,017,190 to $29,814,075. The figures for exports from other manufacturing countries for the same period are not available, but our record in this respect is insignificant compared with that of Great Britain, though that country depends upon us for most of her raw material. With more liberal trade relations, our cotton business with foreign countries ought to go ahead of all other countries.

The New York Jounal of Commerce commenting upon the increase of our export of cotton manufactures, says: "There was a decided improvement in the condition of the market for manufactured goods during the last cotton year, especially in this country, which was largely due to the failure of disturbing efforts of the Southern Cotton Association to manipulate the supply and bolster up the price, largely by misrepresentation of actual conditions. Economic forces prevailed over these efforts and the price was fairly adjusted to the relation between real supply and demand, to the benefit of all concerned."

CURRENT COMMENT.

Mr. Bryan can console himself with the reflection that he would be knocked just as hard in some quarters if he had declared in favor of the Ten Commandments.—Washington Post.

Happy in the possession of Sam Jones at its Chautauqua and in anticipation of John L. Sullivan at its county fair, Charlotte refuses to get excited over the coming of the Nebraskan.—Greensboro Industrial News (Rep.)

The Philadelphia Inquirer touches upon an interesting not to say vital, point, when it suggests: "Suppose Bryan should be elected President, how would he hold a naval review at Lincoln, Neb?" He would hold it at New York or Hampton Roads, where the people could see it, and not make it a private show at his summer home.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Sam Jones gave it to the lousy, flopeared hounds who are still scratching their sides with all the pleasurable delight of an old dog raking off the fleas, but it was noticed that he let the old sisters off light. He used to make the sisters bite their lips and squirm in their seats, but this time he never "teched them." Heretofore his best humor has been at the expense of the women. Maybe he is trying to fool them into a false sense of security and toll them back to his "lectures," when he will take occasion to open out on them again. Charlotte Chronicle.

—Mother—I hear that Mr. Jones had the impudence to kiss you at the station. What did you do? Daughter—Oh, I kissed him, too, so as to make the people think we were related.—Stray Stories.

—Binks—I believe that Mary does not love me any longer. Jinks—Did she say as much? Binks—No, but she let her little sister sit in the parlor with us last evening.—Woman's Home Companion.

—"Why do you suppose Jinx has asked his mother-in-law to come and make her home at his house? She hasn't any money." "Perhaps he has an eye on the Carnegie hero medal."—Houston Post.

—Gridge—That will be a fine marriage, a splendid alliance. The bride's father is rich. She just rolls in gold. The bridegroom is rich, too; he made a fortune in copper. Bridge—That's not an alliance; it's an alloy.—Le Rire.

—Solft leigh—Good evening Mrs. Moran. I came to see if your daughter would go for a walk with me. Miss Mabel—How do you do, Mr. Softleigh? I shall be delighted. Mamma, do I look fit to go to a restaurant?—Life.

—Sympathetic Friend—Cheer up. Perhaps they will let your husband out of jail soon. Mrs. Wringertub—That's what I am afraid of. Now that I hadn't anyone ter support I wuz a-goin' ter take a vacation, but if they lets him out I'll hev to go back ter washin'.—Chicago News.

The Breath of Life.

It is a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla, also has the strongest lungs means powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

WHISKEY DISEASE CAN BE CURED

Keely Treatment Will Make Home a Paradise Instead of a Hell—Living Testimony to That Truth.

The Keeley Institute, Greensboro, N. C.:

It has been 12 years last June since I had the good fortune to get to what I consider is the only place on earth that will save the poor unfortunate one who has that awful disease of whiskey drinking which I know from my own experience is a dread disease. The Keeley Treatment will cure you if you will try it; and it will do all that is promised for it if you will help it a little. As for myself, the Keeley cured me, and it will cure you, if you will only give it a trial. The Keeley treatment has saved my life; it has bought me a nice home; it has made my home a Paradise instead of a Hell; it has made my wife and children happy; it has put them in the best society; it has made a lawyer of one of my boys; it has made a merchant of one; it has made my daughter a graduate in music, and she is today teaching and making her own support. The Keeley cure has saved me to help save others. Now I want to say to all mothers, wives, sisters and friends, when your loved ones get drunk do not send for a doctor, but send for a graduate of the Keeley Institute, and let him take them to Greensboro where they will be cured, and come back to you new men from head to foot. I know what I am talking about. As for the managers, they can't be beat. The Keeley Institute is perfect in everp respect—God bless them all.

I can't say one half in this letter that I would like concerning all that the Keeley Institute has done for me. I went to the Institute about 13 years ago a lost man, soul and body; without money, without friends. Today I have all. I thank God and the Keeley Insttitute for all that it has done for me and mine. Now, friends, go to some one that has taken the Keeley treatment, and he will tell you the rest. May God bless the Institute and all of its good works; both for what it has done and for what it will do hereafter. Respectfully yours,

R D. OWENS.

A FAIR TRIAL.

A dealer who carries Dixon's Graphite Axle Grease in stock decided to make a test for himself. He greased the left wheels of a large wagon with the Dixin Axle Grease and the rig ht wheels with another grease. At the same time he instructed his driver to examine both wheels from time to time and report, but under no circumstance to put on any more Graphite Axle Grease as long as the Axle was black and shiny, showing the graphite coating.

The driver reported that after he had greased the right wheels four times with the other grease, the left wheels were still running all right and needed no attention.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE

—A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed with the clerk of the Federal Court at Raleigh on Tuesday for J. R. Askew, of Whitaker, Edgecombe county. Liabilities aggregate about $5,000 with assets amounting to but little.

—Sanford Express: Dr. and Mrs. Daniel McGilvary will sail for their distant home in Siam September 29th. We are glad to know that Mrs. McGilvary has been restored to health. Dr. McGilvary tells us that before leaving he will say goodbye to his friends in America for the last time.

—The Wilson graded school opened Monday with an enrollment of 605 pupils, the largest opening in the history of the school. The enrollment on opening-day last year was 561. The school has a faculty of eighteen, including the superintendent, Prof. Gray King.

—Deputy Sheriff A. S. Richardson was in Raleigh Tuesday and committed three negroes to the State prison from Columbus county. They were Exum Battle, sentenced for 30 years, and Henry Battle, for 15 years, for the murder of another negro, and Nat Shy, sentenced for 5 years for burglary.

—Traffic on the Raleigh and Southport Railroad was blocked most of the day Tuesday by a wreck between Raleigh and McCullers. The pasenger train from Fayetteville to Raleigh had several freight cars, as usual, and they were derailed, tearing up the track for some distance. No one was hurt and the principal damage sustained by the road was the tearing up of the track.

—At Raleigh on Tuesday Wayland Ferrell, who shot Bertha Brown while she was attempting to prevent him from shooting a man, was admitted to bail in the amount of $400. Irene Vallier, who is in jail as one of the witness to the shooting, is still held in prison in default of $100 bail. As Bertha Brown's condition will not permit her to be out for some time, the hearing has been postponed till October 9th.

—Suit has been entered at Raleigh by Mrs. Maggie Lewis, widow of F. B. Lewis, as administratrix, against the Seaobard Air Line Railroad for damages on account of the death of Engineer F. B. Lewis, who was killed in a head-on collision near Hamlet some time ago. Mr. Lewis was an engineer on one of the trains, was 39 years old, and at the time of his death was making $190 a month. Messrs. Argo & Shaffer are attorneys for Mrs. Lewis.

—Raleigh News and Observer, Sept. 12: Last night during an altercation on Lane street, near the gas house, a negro, John Person, was badly shot by another negro, George Stewart. Person was wounded in the lower part of the abdomen and was in great agony. He was taken to St. Agnes Hospital for treatment, while Stewart fled. The police are after him. There is nothing known of the cause of trouble between the negroes.

—The sales of leaf tobacco at Wilson on Tuesday were among the largest of the season, 300,000 pounds being sold at an average price of ten cents. The Wilson market has double sales and it required the entire day to sell the big breaks. Last week one and a quarter million pounds of tobacco were sold on the Wilson warehouse floors, and it is quite likely that the sales this week will equal that amount.

—The Secretary of State at Raleigh on Tuesday chartered the Laurinburg Normal and Industrial Institute, colored. The purpose is to conduct an insitute at Laurinburg for the instruction of colored teachers. There is no capital stock. The incorporators are E. M. McDuffie, J. B. A. Yelverton, Robert Leach, M. L. Shaw, J. H. David, of Laurinburg; G. L. Blackwell, of Philadelphia, Pa.; W. J. Edwards and E. D. Whitehead, of Snow Hill, and R. C. Bedford, of Beloit, Wisconsin.

—Kernersville Special, Sept. 11: Hon. William Jennings Bryan while en route through the State, will address the citizens of Kernersville and surrounding country at 8:30 a. m., Tuesday, September 18, for fifteen minutes, arrangements having been perfected to this effect. Oak Ridge Institute will turn out six or seven hundred strong to meet him. All mills, factories and other industries will close down long enough for every employe to enjoy his presence. Four or five thousand people will greet him and a large delegation will accompany him to Winston-Salem.

—Raleigh News and Observer, Sept. 12: Governor Glenn finds that he will be unable to go to Norfolk on September 19, and after Thursday week will actively engaged in the campaign. He will speak in Charlotte at the Chautauqua there on the fourteenth, and will speak in Shelby on the 15th at the county Democratic convention. He will be in Raleigh to introduce Hon. W. J. Bryan on his visit here and will do the same in Winston. After this he will speak in many other places in the State. On October 16th he will deliver the address at the opening of the State Fair in Raleigh, and on the opening of the Forsyth County Fair.

—Charlotte Special, Sept. 11: Nearly two years ago Grace Collette, a resident of this city discovered a negro man under her bed and threw him out the back door. The matter was reported at once to the police but the burglar had fled, and only yeserday was he captured and brought into court to-day. In telling her story, the nervy woman related how the burglar, Armist Mobley, suddenly emerged from beneath her bed and demanded all of her money, and when she tried to talk he told her to keep quiet, lest she wake her sleeping son on the other side of the room. The plucky woman seized the negro by the collar and literally hurled him out the back door, where he disappeared in the darkness. He was sent to jail to-day to await trial.

—Tarboro Special, Sept. 11: Many persons around Pinetops believe that Tom Smith, who was recently killed on the East Carolina, deliberately had his his own life taken. It is claimed that he was not drunk, that he had been heard to express a weariness of life. Some thinking, when he was on the eve of leaving that he was going to Macclesfield, requested his to take a package, which Smith declined to do, saying that he did not know as he would ever reach there, that he was tired of living anyway. It is also cited in support of the suicide theory that he had not been gone many minutes when his body was brought back on the cars; that he had very little time to wait for the train after walking three quarters of a mile. Scarcely time for a very drunken man to get to sleep, and Smith was not in such a degree of intoxication if any at all.

—Tarboro Special, Sept. 11: The first fall term of the Superior court for one week, convened Monday morning with his Honor, Judge Long, presiding. Two of these are for burglary, cases, two of these are for burglary, two negroes, Dave and Al. Williams, and one case of bigamy, white, James Morris, who a few months ago obtained a license for himself by representing himself to be another man and married Miss Summerlin near Old Sparta. Solicitor Daniels will have a task to complete this docket in the one week allowed court. The judge's charge to the grand jury was full, complete, lucid, and made a favorable impression upon all who heard it, a court room full of people. The firm stand that Judge Long took and maintained at Salisbury when that "necktie" party was pulled off, was known here and many of our best citizens were in the court room to see and hear a judge who had displayed such firmness and promptness in having the law maintained and vindicated.

—Durham Special, Sept. 11: Late this afternoon Captain E. T. White and Tom Smith were arrested by the police on the charge of burglary. They were locked up, bail being refused pending an examination into the case to-morrow morning. The prisoners, both of whom are young men, are charged with entering the home of Mrs. Maggie Coley Monday morning about two o'clock. The arrest has caused a great deal of interest and much talk. The story told by Mrs. Coley is that she retired Sunday night at the usual hour; that between one and two o'clock Monday morning, near two o'clock, that Capt. E. T. White and Tom Smith entered her bed room through a rear window. She says that the light was burning and she recognized White having known him for some time. The other man with him she did not know by name, but the description she gave caused the arrest of Smith and she has identified him. Chief Woodall was slow in issuing the warrant; wishing to satisfy himself as far as possible. To-day Mrs. Coley came down town and made the necessary affidavit, leading to the arrests, which were made late in the afternoon. When arrested they were out driving. White was captain of Company I, First regiment, before that military company disbanded here. He has lived in Durham all of his life. Smith is also a Durham young man, being the son of H. M. Smith.

RESULT OF MAINE ELECTION.

Republican Slump Viewed as Practical Victory for Democrats.

New York Times (Ind.)

Mr. Littlefield is re-elected to the House of Representatives by so small a margin that as a guage of the influences brought against him the result must be taken as practically a defeat. Even if Mr Littlefield is "kept at home," in the phrase of the President, his narrow escape from defeat in so strong a Rpubican district will tend greatly to strengthen the hands of Mr. Gompers' new party.

New York Herald (Ind.)

Governor Hill's majority of 27,000 in 1902 and Governor Cobb's of 28,000 in 1894 has fallen to about 7,000. The Republican managers made strong efforts to lift the thoughts of the voters from burning local questions, involving the non-enforcement and resubmission of the prohibitory law by making President Roosevelt and the work of the last session of Congress the issue. But for this, it is probable that the Democrats would have carried the State.

(Tom Pence, in News and Observer.)

The result was a complete surprise. It is needless to say that it is taken as a great achievement by the opposition in the face of the great odds. Of course, while local conditions operated favorably for the Democrats, still the evidence is unmistakable that the Democrats rallied admirably and yielded fruits full of encouragement for the party everywhere. They had mainly to stand firm and hold their allies against the Republican demand that the administration must be endorsed. As it was, with Roosevelt to be endorsed, his majority in 1904 having been 36,800 and the average Republican majority on Monday being 8,000, a Democratic gain on the Roosevelt vote of over 28,000 is apparent.

Charlotte Chronicle (Dem.)

The Republicans in Maine had the scare of their lives yesterday. Their Governor was elected by a majority so small that it looks like it ought to be contested, and Littlefield barely pulled through for Congress. If the Democrats had taken the full advantage of their chance they would have captured the State.

TYLER—BROWN.

Pretty Wedding Ceremony Last Night on Market Street.

At the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. P. Cunningham, No. 1104 Market street, at 9 o'clock last night a pretty wedding ceremony performed by Rev. J. S. Crowley, pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian church, joined in marriage Miss Lucy I. Tyler, the attractive young daughter of Mr. Thad Tyler, and Mr. John W. Brown, a popular young Wilmingtonian with Messrs. J. W. Murchison & Co., in this city. There were present a number of friends of the young people and the wedding is described as being a very pretty one indeed. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. E. P. Cunningham, as dame of honor, and the groom was attended by Mr. Claude Hill as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at which refreshments were served and congratulations were extended by many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, No. 1104 Market street.

MEN ARE POWERLESS

To Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause.

To treat Dandruff, and Falling Hair, with irritants or oils on which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising.

You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble.

You must kill the Dandruff Germ.

Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing.

When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

MARRIED LAST EVENING.

Miss Elizabeth Otersen Bride of Mr. James S. Davis.

A quiet but withal a very pretty wedding ceremony in which a large number of friends will be interested was celebrated last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. A. Otersen, No. 710 North Third street, the parties to the marriage vow being Miss Elizabeth V. Otersen and Mr. James S. Davis, both popular young people of Wilmington, the groom being a member of the firm of Warren & Davis, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. W. A. Snyder, in the presence of only a few friends and relatives. The bride wore a becoming gown of white swiss, trimmed with Mechlin lace, and carried a lovely bouquet of flowers. The groom was attired in the conventional black.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was given at which delightful refreshments were served, the bride and groom receiving many happy felicitations upon the happy event in their lives. A large number of very handsome wedding gifts attest their popularity in the city. They will make their home at Third and Red Cross streets.

Mary, the Contrary

By HELENA SMITH DAYTON

Copyright, 1906, by K. A. Whitehead

"If it takes two to make a quarrel, we're the two," Mary Gale declared.

"Because you make mountains of golf tees, dear," Carlyle explained in a superior tone.

"How fortunate you have discovered in time what a disagreeable person I am," flashed Mary. "But let me assure you that since our engagement my diary reads like the history of a South American republic."

Frequent misunderstandings resulted in Mary declining to step into the frail craft of matrimony and selecting instead an ocean liner, remaining abroad five years.

At a reception in Mary's honor upon her return there was no one she welcomed more graciously than Carlyle. Hers was disarming cordiality.

"It's good to see you again," Carlyle repeated between laughs, for Mary's experiences were breezy.

"And it's good to see you," she echoed. "A wise woman doesn't lose her best friend by marrying him!"

"Mary," he reproved, "Paris has made you flippant; also very wonderful and awe inspiring." He glanced at her triumphant toilet.

"No; only extravagant," she corrected. "Bobbie, you should see the shops! The dear, little"—

"I'm not interested in the Paris shops," he said severely. "I want to tell you how foolish we were to let a few feathers of the imagination part us."

"They were firm facts," said Mary coldly. "I have them all down in my diary."

"Mary! Doesn't your diary bring back any delightful memories? All mine are charming."

"Your memory must be of the eliminating variety—like that of the surviving relatives of wicked persons. John's widow thinks of his nice eyes and forgets he ever brought them home blackened!" she retorted.

"Those were my happiest days," persisted Carlyle. "Can't we bring them back again?"

"To prove our decision of five years ago was a wise one?" sniffed Mary.

"I'd be willing to try it," he dared her.

"Very well," assented Mary. "Like veterans around a stove, we'll refight the battles of the glorious past."

The plan was made to go from place to place in Carlyle's motor and visit the scenes of old quarrels.

"Where first?" asked Carlyle as they were speeding down the avenue the next morning in his car. "Have you your guidebook?"

Mary promptly drew forth a red diary.

"Country club," she directed.

"The quarrel?" he smiled when they were seated in comfortable chairs on the piazza.

"Because I was pleasant to Bertie Hilliard," she blushed, "to punish you for being late."

"Unreasonable of you to be angry because I was late, Mary. In those days business kept me tied down."

"You were always late," defended Mary. "I spent most of my time waiting for you."

"There's Bertie now," said Carlyle. "But we won't quarrel about him any more. He's married."

"There are," admitted Mary, "worse faults than being late."

"I'm not so busy now, so you see our quarrels haven't stood the test of time," hinted Carlyle.

"It takes more than two quarrels to break an engagement," said Mary, flipping the pages in her diary. "Our next one occurre beneath the tree near the fourth green." There was something businesslike in her manner as she led the way across the links.

"Like old times," commented Carlyle.

"I haven't arrived at an age to enjoy living in the past," said Mary crisply.

"The present is good enough," agreed Carlyle, as they sat down on a rustic bench. "I'm glad you are willing to bury the past."

"I meant nothing of the kind," stormed Mary. "We will now take up the quarrel that marks this spot."

"Why, this is where I told you I loved you!" declared Carlyle. "Let me see that book." He extended his hand, but Mary shook her head.

"You can't!" she said.

"Little girl, don't you suppose I remember distinctly what happened here? Instead of reviving old quarrels let's start all over again beneath this dear old tree." Carlyle's voice was compelling.

Mary's face was averted as she answered.

"There would be new quarrels. I make mountains of golf tees!"

"I'll agree to be compatible to all your incompatibilities," he smiled. "I love Mary when she's contrary."

"You think you do, but you don't," she quoted. Then, with a scream of terror, she jumped on the bench, for coming toward them was an amiable looking cow. Mary's terror was not affected, for she made no distinctions in bovines.

"Mary," said Carlyle, with a solemn air, "we are in peril. Here, that red book would divert the animal." Before Mary could protest, her diary was thrown as a hostage to the enemy. Carlyle followed her as she fled toward the clubhouse.

"We might have been killed!" gasped Mary, sinking into a chair.

Carlyle concealed with difficulty his elation at the fate of the volume which kept injuries fresh in Mary's mind. Then a disquieting thought struck him. Suppose Mary's diary were found?

"Mary," he said, "I'll go and find your book. Some one may read it."

"No, no, no!" cried Mary excitedly. "You mustn't!"

Unheeding, he moved off.

"Bobby, for my sake don't go!"

There was consternation in her face.

"Why, little girl," he exclaimed joyfully, "there's no danger. The creature has gone by this time."

At this instant a young man in white flannels came up.

"Pardon me—but does this book belong to either of you? It's brand new and had no name in it—but I thought"—

"Yes, it's mine, thank you," she interrupted.

"A—new—diary?" queried Carlyle, astonished.

"Yes. I burned the old one four years ago."

"Then why did you pretend"— began Carlyle.

"I wanted an excuse to visit our tree without seeming too sentimental," she confessed boldly. "You may think what you like of me."

"I think you are adorable," declared Carlyle.

"I'm glad I bought that diary," sighed Mary happily. "It will be so nice to keep golf scores in. But," as an afterthought, "we'll let the old scores go!"

REVENUE OFFICIALS CONVICTED.

Result of Trial in Federal Court at Greensboro.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Greensboro, Sept. 12.—Former Deputy Collector R. H. Hardin was found guilty in Federal court today of negligence and designedly permitting operation of illicit distilleries while in the government service. The special term adjourned this afternoon and argument on motions of passing of sentence was deferred.

L. E. Davis, charged with the same offense, pleaded guilty. Sentence was deferred. These are two of the large number of cases in which indictments have been found for violations of internal revenue laws in Wilkes county. One witness in the Hardin case said he believed there were 300 illicit distilleries in the county.

RUN ON SAN FRANCISCO BANK.

Unexplained Rush By Depositors—Deposits Are $30,000,000.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

San Francisco, Sept. 11.—Depositors of the Hibernia Saving Bank started a run on the institution today. The bank has 86,000 depositors and the deposits amount to over $30,000,000. It is regarded as a strong institution. When the run started police were called to keep order and depositors were paid off as fast as they applied for money. Five paying tellers were kept busy. Joseph F. Stobine, one of the officers of the bank, stated that he knew no cause for the run.

SEC SHAW AT ASHEVILLE.

Had to Pause On Account of Applause For Bryan.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Asheville, N. C., September 12.—Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the United States Treasury, spoke in the Asheville auditorium this afternoon to a rather small gathering, including a number of women and children. His speech was on the tariff question and he was frequently applauded. At the mention of the name of William J. Bryan, he was forced by the applause to stop for a few minutes before completing his sentence.

Secretary Shaw paused for a second after mentioning "Uncle Joe" Cannon, while a few feeble claps were heard. "Well," said the Secretary, "Can't you give a native of your State a better send-off than that?" Hearty applause then followed. The Secretary's speech was along the lines of his Salisbury address.

The Secretary will leave early tomorrow morning for Tennessee where he will deliver several addresses.

RESCUE STEAMER IN DISTRESS

Same Vessel Which Picked Up Ship Off Southport.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Norfolk, Va., September 12.—Due in New York last Saturday, with cargo of lumber, the Atlantic Coast Lumber Company's steamer Aragon, Captain Blackler, arrived here to-night in distress.

The Aragon had in tow the Barge Faxon, which was taken in tow at the capes by the tug Reliance, so as to relieve the disabled steamer and enable her to make this port the quicker.

The Aragon on Monday rescued the steamer Richmond, also of the Atlantic Coast Lumber Company, which had been drifting off the coast of South Carolina for two days. The Richmond lost her propeller and was at the mercy of the sea with her crew of ten souls on board. The Aragon got a line to her sister-ship in distress and towed her into Southport.

The Aragon then started on her journey to New York. When miles off the Virginia capes, her fresh water supplies gave out and she was forced to use salt water in her boilers. This caused the tubes to leak and she crept into port tonight in distreess.

She anchored off the coal piers at Lambert's Point and Captain Blackler stated that he expected to have the boiler repaired in time for his ship to get away from port before daybreak.

Deputy Sheriff Curry, from Adrian, Ga., Tuesday arrested Jim Neal, colored, and was on his way to Eastman with him when Tom Neal, a brother of the man under arrest, tried to take him away from Curry. Neal opened fire on Curry with a gun. The fire was returned and Tom Neal was shot through the head and killed. In the excitement Jim Neal escaped but was captured later by Curry and lodged in the Dodge county jail.

We have had an instance in Wilmington this week of the fining of a water wagon driver for getting off the water wagon.

"Roosevelt is the issue" thundered the Cannon in Maine; and Taft repeated it with emphasis. How the mighty are fallen!

It looks like the South Carolina State dispensary is "doomed," and we are quite sure it has been damned.

John J., Forger

By Grace Charles

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Purcells

"Then you have no excuse to offer?" Marion's voice was dangerously even. Dick Gordon hated those cold, accusing tones.

"I have no excuse—to offer," he confirmed angrily. "The woman I am to marry should be content with my statement that there was a good reason."

"Unfortunately she is not," said Marion as she laid the ring on his desk. "I cared enough about the matter to come to your office to see you about it. Since you want to be independent, I give you back your entire independence."

His face white with anger, Gordon threw open the door and stood there as she passed through to the next room. Over in the corner John J. was busy with the mail, but he looked up with a grin on his freckled face to smile upon her as she went out. John J. approved of Marion.

Gordon went back to his desk. The golden circlet lying there was too much for his composure, and, with a groan, he threw his arms forward on the desk and buried his head upon them.

It had all been very silly and yet very tragic. He had meant to write Marion that there was a meeting of the promoters of the L. and F. railroad and that he would have to be present to furnish them with estimates if he hoped to get the contract. If he could land that order his success would be assured, and in the prospect of winning out he had forgotten to write.

They were both high strung, and when in the morning she had demanded an explanation of his broken engagement without having waited for him to call up on the telephone he had angrily refused to offer any explanation or apology, and when she had come to his office they were both too angry to arrive at an understanding.

Gordon was roused by a touch on the shoulder. He sprang nervously up, to confront John J.

"Why don't you go home?" he thundered. "The office should have been closed half an hour ago!"

"I'm going now," explained John J., with unusual meekness. "But you oughter go up and see Miss Marion and tell her you're sorry."

Gordon grasped John J. by the shoulders and propelled him into the outer office, while that youngster insisted that he would be sorry in the morning if not just then. The encounter had at least served to rouse Gordon, and he went uptown to the club to spend a miserable evening trying to pretend to himself that he did not care about the broken engagement.

JOHN J. WATCHED HER ANXIOUSLY.

John J.'s "You'll be sorry in the morning if you ain't now" was prophetic. Dick moped over his desk all the morning, unable to do any work. A dozen times he reached for the telephone to call Marion up and ask her forgiveness, and each time he set it irresolutely down again, declaring to himself that Marion should have known that he had a good excuse and that she should have waited until he could call her up. It was on her account as well as his own that he was worried about that contract, and if she could not realize that a half mentioned engagement might have slipped his mind in the pressure of more important matters that was her fault, not his.

Half a dozen times during the morning John J. stole into the room to remind him that those figures for the L. and F. had to be sent out that evening. Each time he was met with a torrent of rebuke. Then he put on his hat and went out of the office, though his lunch hour was not until 1 o'clock.

He knew where Marion lived, and the statement that he had a message for her was enough to get him past the door. Presently the butler came back wearing a solemn frown.

"Miss Darling does not care to receive the message," he said.

"You tell her I want to see her myself," announced John J.

For a moment the butler hesitated, and through that hesitation was lost. Somehow John J. usually got what he wanted, but he was the only person not surprised when Marion sent down word that she would see him.

"I want to tell you about Mr. Gordon," he began as the butler closed the door. "Say, he's awful about the place. He can't do any work, and he can't keep his hands off the telephone. If he don't quiet down and write those railroad people he's going to lose the chance of his life."

"Why do you come to me?" she asked coldly. "I have nothing to do with the matter."

"Quit your kiddin'," urged John J. "I heard you yesterday. You didn't speak loud, but your words came through the partition like they was bullets. You threw him because I forgot to bring you a letter yesterday. It's all my fault for forgetting to bring up the letter."

"Do you mean that he sent me a letter explaining that he would not call last night?"

"Sure," was the easy reply as John J. dug in one of his pockets. "He was in a hurry, and I took it on the machine for him. Just tell him you're sorry over the telephone so's he can go to work."

Marion tore open the letter. "Dear friend," it ran, "I am sorry I can't come to see you tonight, but there's some guys I must see about that railroad matter and I can't come. I'm sorry, but you see this is awfully important, and I know you won't mind. Don't dance with any of the other fellows. I'm sorry I can't come. Yours till death."

It was signed with his full name, and Katherine's eyes twinkled as she read it over. John J. watched her anxiously. As the smile came over her face his own assumed a look of satisfaction, and as she replaced the sheet in its envelope he sprang forward.

"Does it go?" he demanded. "Will you telephone him?"

"It goes," she smiled as she crossed the room where the telephone stood. He followed her across.

"Don't give me away," he pleaded hoarsely. "Don't let on that I forgot to give you the note."

"I won't," she assured as she raised the receiver from the hook.

With instinctive politeness he crossed the room and pretended to look out of the window while she was speaking, but the sharp ears would listen, and when she called to him he knew that it was all right and that the important letter would be written.

"It is all right," she said as she came toward him. "I have telephoned Mr. Gordon, and he understands. It was very good of you to come up and tell me, John."

"Something had to be done," he protested, "and there wasn't anybody else to do it."

Marion leaned forward and kissed his freckled cheek. "I should be very jealous of you, John J., if you were a woman," she said. "You care a great deal for Mr. Gordon."

"He's all right," assented John J., "if he does have a mad spell now and then. I just let him rave till he gets over it; then he's sorry. You ought to try that."

"It's good advice," she smiled.

"You didn't tell him that I was up here?" he asked as he paused at the door.

"No," she assured. "Then I should have had to explain about the letter."

"He don't like to have me butting in," explained John J. as he slid through the doorway.

It was not for several days that Marion told Dick of the pitiful little forgery made to bring things out right and showed him John J.'s idea of a love letter, with its inked over rubber stamped facsimile of his signature, but it was a happy moment for John J. when Dick shook his hand, man fashion, and thanked him for what he had done.

"Forget it," was the only suitable response he could think of, but Dick and Marion cannot.

A Miser's Hoard

By... DONALD ALLEN

Copyright, 1906, by Beatrix Reade

Jacob Van Girten had been known as a miser for thirty years, and at his death people looked for a large sum of money to turn up. Jake, as he was always referred to, lived on a farm about three miles from the village of Castile. It was a farm of eighty acres, and yet it produced few crops. Aside from an acre or two of corn and potatoes for his own use, he planted nothing. He began with a little money, and in the course of fifteen years he was the capitalist of the county. If anybody was willing to pay his usurious rates of interest, he could borrow from $5 to $5,000 without trouble. For many years he did business with the bank in the village, but finally became suspicious and took care of his own funds.

It finally became a matter of gossip for leagues around that Miser Van Girten kept thousands of dollars in his old farmhouse, and for once gossip was right. Of course there were men who told him of the risks he ran and advised him against it, but he smiled at their solicitude and made no change.

It was predicted that robbers would come and that he would be found murdered. And in due time robbers came. They came more than once, and they tried several sorts of tricks on the old man. The first pair of robbers simply kicked the old door open in the darkness of midnight and rushed in to catch the miser in bed. He wasn't in bed, however. He was up and dressed and armed with a shotgun, and he peppered the fellows so thoroughly that there was no trouble in arresting them when the constable was notified.

The next man who came along was in the guise of an old woman. He made a call just at dark, hobbling on a cane and telling a story of want and destitution, but when he got ready to take the old man by the neck Jake wasn't there. He dodged him and got hold of that old shotgun and gave the stranger a dose that kept him in the hospital for four months before he could be taken to jail to await arraignment.

When the miser had reached what might be called old age, the authorities of the county insisted that he take better steps to protect himself. While they could not legally compel him to do anything, the case was put to him so strongly that he finally consented to pay a sturdy young man a small sum weekly for sleeping in the house with him at night and acting as a guard and defender. This service continued for two years, and then the end came. The guard was not there in the daytime, and one evening when he made his appearance at the usual hour he found the old man dead in his rocking chair. He seemed to have passed away while sleeping.

The proper authorities were notified at once and took charge, and the curiosity of a whole county was excited over the question of how much money would be found in the house. When it came to that, the guard, whose name was Henry Davis and who was known to be honest and truthful, stated that during the two years he had been there he had not seen the old man handle more than $10 in cash. He knew that in that time he had loaned and received thousands, but where he kept his hoard was a matter that could not even be fathomed. All money transactions had been made in the daytime, when the young man was absent.

People who borrowed and repaid had always to give two hours' notice. They then found the old man ready to lend or receive. It was judged from this rule of his that he wanted time to dig his money up or to produce it from some secret hiding place outside the house. This theory, which seemed quite plausible, led to some funny results. Every farmer for two miles around began searching his barn and sheds, thinking they might have been made the depository, and scores of men looked for hollow trees and stumps and went digging in what they thought were likely places.

In the meantime the old house was submitted to the most careful and thorough search. It was a cottage, with parlor, bedroom and kitchen below and a half garret upstairs. The miser occupied the bedroom and the guard the parlor, both sleeping on the floor on straw beds. The kitchen was furnished with an old rusty stove and a meager supply of dishes, and Jake cooked what he ate.

Beginning at the cellar bottom, the searchers worked up. The bottom of the cellar was dug over to a depth of two feet, but nothing was found. Then the baseboards were torn off the rooms above, the walls pierced here and there, and before the search ceased the very shingles were taken from the roof. One reason why the search was so keen and thorough was because of the number of heirs who came forward. Plenty of people had heard old Jake declare that he was the last of his race and if he had any blood relatives at all they were second cousins living in some province in Germany, but no sooner had news of his death traveled about than kinsmen began showing up and filing their claims.

Van Girten was German born, but Englishmen, Frenchmen and Italians came forward, to say nothing of Americans, and none of them, according to his account, was anything less than first cousin. All insisted on the most rigid search, and, although not allowed to participate in it, the sheriff did his whole duty. When he had finished with the house it was a wreck, and all agreed that a dollar bill could not have been hidden away and escaped the search.

As nothing was found in the house, the "heirs" insisted on the grounds being searched. Diggers threw up the earth at the foot of every tree, rocks were rolled over and mounds burrowed into, and another two weeks were wasted in vain.

The searchers hated to let go, but they had to, and then the only thing remaining was to sell the old man's personal property at auction and turn over his real estate to the law and let the heirs prove their claims. The term "personal goods and chattels" made everybody smile. The straw beds and dirty blankets, the two or three old chairs, the rusty and broken old stove and the few cracked dishes were valued at $1 at a liberal estimate, and when a farmer named Robinson bid them in for 70 cents he was made the butt for many jokes. He loaded up his "bargain" and carted it off, and the case was considered closed.

Many people continued to search for a year, taking in woods and hills four miles away, but at last it was a dead subject and was not heard of again for ten years.

Then a very singular thing happened. Robinson, who had removed to another state, met with a fatal accident, but before dying made a confession. He passed for and really was a wealthy man, and as to how he had made his money no one knew. In his confession he said that after getting the old stove home he found the oven doors wired up. Loosening one of them, he looked in to find the old miser's strong box resting there. By the use of brick and mortar the oven had been so shut off that a fire in the front of the stove would not warm it. While the stove was the most conspicuous object in the kitchen, it was at the same time the safest hiding place for miles around. There was over $30,000 in the box, and the finder simply kept quiet until he could arrange to move away and enjoy it. At the auction sale, when that old stove was bid in, there were at least 200 men in attendance, any one of whom could have got the fortune by raising Robinson's bid 10 or 15 cents, and now, after twenty years have elapsed, none of them still living has forgiven himself.

THE BREATH OF LIFE

It is a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs mean powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, September 12.—The cotton market was only moderately active to-day and fluctuations were irregular with the close barely steady at a net advance of 12 points on September but generally 1 to 4 points lower. Sales were estimated at 200,000 bales.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 4 points which was a little better than due on the cables as a result of a scattering demand most of which seemed to be for Southern account, while local operators were persistent sellers. The weather map made a fairly good showing according to local views, but the Western belt forecast called for showers and colder weather and this helped to steady the market during the middle session with prices at one time about 2 to 4 points net higher. Toward the close there was realizing by some of the early buyers, and a little more aggressive selling by local bears and last prices were within a couple of points of the lowest on the active months. There was very little business in September and the advance was on one or two purchases. Comparatively little spot news was received. Reports from the Eastern belt indicate increasing receipts at interior towns.

Receipts cotton at the ports to-day 19,917 bales against 11,329 last week, and 24,221 last year. For the week 150,000 bales against 72,746 last week and 213,630 last year. To-day's receipts at New Orleans 2,862 bales against 742 last year and at Houston 8,622 against 8,349 last year.

Spot cotton closed quiet; middling uplands 9.80; middling gulf 1,105; sanes none.

Futures closed barely steady. Opening and closing prices follow:

DRY GOODS MARKET.

New York, September 12.—The dry goods market was quiet to-day. Fine dress ginghams were advanced ½c per yard and madras shirtings 1-4c per yard. Scarcity in lines of bleached goods, ginghams, knit goods, hosiery and many lines of colored goods for domestic use was the chief feature of the market. Buyers took goods in small quantities for quick delivery as they have been doing for two months.

COLONEL BRYAN IN LOUISVILLE

Southland's Enthusiastic Greeting to Acknowledged Leader of Hosts of Democracy

HE SPOKE TO 12,000 PEOPLE

Eloquent Henry Watterson Presided at Mass-meeting and Proclaimed Bryan as Chieftain of Coming Conflict.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Louisville, Ky., September 12.—Entering the Southland for the first time in two years, William Jennings Bryan to-day was welcomed here with spontaneous gladness. He seized the occasion to read a statement in explanation of his New York speech on government ownership of railroads.

Mr. Bryan's arrival in the city prevoked a great outburst of acclamations from thousands of marchers and other thousands in the streets. His reception at the armory to-night, where he addressed 12,000 persons, was wildly enthusiastic.

The mass-meeting at the armory constituted Kentucky's greeting on behalf of the South and it was a representative Southern gathering, graced by leading Kentucky Democrats, a number of prominent Democrats from other Southern States, and citizens from Kentucky and Indiana. Mr. Bryan was welcomed to Kentucky by his whilom oponent. Henry Watterson, who presided at to-night's meeting. The other speakers at the Bryan mass-meeting to-night were Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, representing the South, and Senator W. J. Stone, of Missouri, who introduced the guest of honor.

When Mr. Bryan entered the hall on the arm of Mr. Watterson there was a demonstration that lasted ten minutes. As soon as the noise subsided, Mr. Watterson began his address of Welcome. Mr. Watterson said there is but one paramount issue for the next Presidential battle, and that is the rescue of the government from hands that have misused and debauched it, and its restoration to the custody of the plain but sovereign people. In an eloquent speech he said: "I recognize as our chieftain in ths approaching conflict the Hon. Wiliam Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska."

When Mr. Watterson pointed to Mr. Bryan and said "Here he is, God bless him and give him wisdom," the audience yelled for five minutes.

The demonstration that greeted Mr. Bryan on his entrance to the hall was renewed as the Nebraskan rose to speak. Following his response to the welcome a great hush fell on the crowd when Mr. Bryan announced that he would read a statement concerning a topic which had been generally discussed since he had touched on it during his speech at New York. He then read his statement which in part follows:

"In my speech at the New York reception I made some remarks concerning the ownership of railroads and thought that I had expressed myself so clearly that my position could not be misconstrued even by those who desire to misconstrue it. The New York speech was prepared in advance. It was not only written but was carefully revised. It stated exactly what I wanted to state and I have nothing to withdraw or modify in the statement therein. What I say to-night is rather in the nature of an elaboraion of the ideas therein presented.

"After quoting from the Democratic platform of 1900, that 'a private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable," and after laying it down as a principle that public ownership should begin where competition ends, and that the people should have the benefit of any monopoly that might be found necessary, I stated that I had reached the conclusion, 'that railroads partake so much of the nature of a monopoly that they must ultimately become public property and be managed by public officials in the interests of the whole community.' I added: 'I do not know that the majority of my own party favors it, but I believe that an increasing number of the members of both parties see in public ownership a sure remedy for discrimination between persons and places and for the extortionate rates for the carrying of freight and passengers.'

"I then proceeded to outline a system of public ownership whereby the advantages of public ownership might be secured to the people without the dangers of centralization.

"This system contemplates Federal ownership of the trunk lines only and the ownership of local lines by the several States. I further expressed it as my opinoion that the railroads themselves were responsible for the growth of sentiment in favor of public ownership and said that while I believed that the rate bill recently enacted should be given a fair trial, we might expect to see the railroads still more active in politics unless our experience with them differs from the experience we had had with the franchise holding corporations. This statement of my views has been assailed by some as an attempt to force these views upon the Democratic party, and by some as an announcement of an intention to insist upon the incorporation of these views in the next Democratic platform.

"Let me answer these charges. I have tried to make it clear that I expressed my own opinion and I have never sought to compel the acceptance of my opinion by any one else. Reserving the right to do my own thinking, I respect the right of every one else to do his own thinking.

"If you ask me whether the question of government ownership will be an issue in the campaignu of 1908, I answer, I do not know. If you ask me whether it ought to be in the platform, I reply I cannot tell until I know what the Democratic voters think upon the subject. If the Democratic voters believe that the next platform should contain a plank in favor of government ownership then that plank ought to be included.

replyrlctivngserpsweyT shrdludrata

"If the Democrats think that it ought not to contain such a plank then such a plank ought not to be included. It rests with the party to make the platform and individuals can only advise. I have spoken for myself and myself only, and I did not know how the suggestion would be received. I am now prepared to confess to you that it has been received more favorably than I expected. There is this, however, that I do not expect, namely, that those Democrats who oppose government ownership will accompany their declaration against it with the assertion that they will favor government ownership whenever they are convinced that the government must choose between government ownership of railroads and railroad ownership of the government.

"I still advocate strict regulation and shall rejoice if experience proves that that regulation can be made effective. I will go farther than that, and say that I believe we can have more efficient regulation under a Democatic administration with a Democratic Senate and House, and yet I would not be honest if I did not frankly admit that observation has convinced me that no such efficient regulation is possible and that governmentownership can be undertaken on the plan outlined with less danger to the country than is involved in private ownership as we have had it or as we are likely to have it."

Lee W. Hicks, until recently a promand killed Tuesday afternoon about and killed yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock at Brooksville, Fla. He was a conductor of a train that runs between Brooksville and Hudson, Fla. Hicks and J. M. Higginbotham, a contractor, of Brooksville, fought a duel with pistols on the platform of a car as the train was leaving the station. Both men were killed, according to a late account.

TURPENTINE MEN HAVE ORGANIZED

North Carolinian Was Elected Vice President of Convention at Jacksonville

NEW WAGE SCALE ADOPTED

Operators Condemn Adulteration of Spirits of Turpentine—Immigration Favored—Producers Urged to Limit Production

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 12.—The convention of turpentine operators today elected officers as follows:

President, W. M. Toomer; Vice Prfesident, Alex Sessoms; Secretary, J. A. Holloman; Treasurer, R. M. Sassnett.

....

A maximum wage scale was adopted, each member to post $250 forfeit. The scale will not go into effect until agreed to by 75 per cent. of the operators. The scale is 1 1-2 cents per box cutting, fifty to sixty cents per barrel for dipping and seventy to eighty-five cents per thousand for chopping.

Resolutions were adopted condemning sensational reports published in New York papers alleging cruel treatment of workmen in turpentine camps, peonage, etc.

It was agreed to abolish the practice of advancing money to labor, paying them only after work has been performed.

Th association decided to wage war against the alleged adulteration of spirits of turpentine with kerosene at Hamburg and Antwerp, which results in discrediting the product with the German consumer.

Resolutions were also adopted urging the operators to limit production of naval stores to the end that there be no reckless waste of timber in extending operations.

They also put themselves on record as in favor of a State immigration bureau to secure a better class of foreign labor than has been coming South, and urging other States in the turpentine belt to take similar action.

SON KILLED AGED FATHER

Negro at Raleigh Knocked Old Man Down the Stairs With Chair

FALL BROKE HIS NECK

Rev. Dr. J. N. Cole, Formerly of Wilmington, Elected Superintendent of Methodist Orphanage—N. C. Policy-Holders' Meeting.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., September 12.—Hardy Cross, colored, was killed by his son, George Cross this morning while the father and son were engaged in a quarrel. The father is seventy, the son fifty years old. The son had been drinking heavily and the older man was reproving him when the son cursed him and dealt the old man a blow over the head with a chair. He fell down the steps breaking his neck. The murderer is a barber.

The Board of Trustees of the Methodist Orphanage this afternoon elected Rev. J. N. Cole, D. D., now pastor of the church at Rockingham, as superintendent to succeed Rev. J. W. Jenkins, D. D. deceased. It is understood Dr. Cole will accept.

A meeting of the North Carolina policy-holders of the New York Life and the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, this evening appointed special committees from the policy-holders of each company to look into the situation and report at an adjourned meeting October 16th. The meeting organized as the North Carolina Policy-holders' Protective Association with J. Van Lindley, chairman. The committee on the part of the Mutual Life has Gov. R. B. Glenn, chairman, the committee for the New York Life, Judge T. B. Womack, chairman. Co-operation is wanted in voting for directors at the New York meeting December 18th. The companies have 13.428 policies, aggregating $26,278,611 in North Carolina.

RUSSELL SAGE BELIEVED

That it was wise for the average man or woman to follow the advice of experts in financial matters. At one time, in discussing this matter, he said:

"There is a common fallacy, quite as prevalent with men as with women, that while for legal advice we go to lawyers and for medical advice to doctors, and for the construction of a great work we go to engineers, financing is everybody's business. As a matter of fact, it is the most profound and complicated of them all."
